This insider trading policy applies to all directors, officers and employees of the Company who receive or have access to Material Non-Public Information (see “Meaning of Material Non-Public Information” on page 4). This group of people, members of their immediate families, and members of their households are sometimes referred to in this insider trading policy as “insiders”. This insider trading policy also applies to any person who receives Material Non-Public Information from any insider.

Any person who possesses Material Non-Public Information on the Company is an insider for so long as such information has not been publicly disclosed.

3.1 GENERAL POLICY

(b) Tipping

No insider shall disclose, or “tip”, Material Non-Public Information to any other person (including family members), including where such information may be used by such person to his or her benefit by trading in the securities of companies to which such information relates, nor shall such insider or related person make recommendations or express opinions on the basis of Material Non-Public Information as to trading in securities of the Company.

There is a “necessary course of business” defence that may be available in certain circumstances in connection with the disclosure of Material Non-Public Information. However, persons in possession of Material Non-Public Information must always obtain the approval of senior management or the board of directors of the Company (the “Board”) before disclosing any Material Non-Public Information to any person. See also the Disclosure Policy of the Company.

(b) Liability for Tipping

Insiders may also be liable for improper transactions by any person (commonly referred to as a “tippee”) to whom they have disclosed Material Non-Public Information on the Company or to whom they have made recommendations or expressed opinions on the basis of such information. The various Canadian securities regulators have imposed large penalties even when the disclosing person did not profit from the trading. The TSX Venture Exchange (and the Toronto Stock Exchange) uses sophisticated electronic surveillance techniques to detect insider trading.

(c) Possible Disciplinary Actions

Directors, officers and employees who violate this insider trading policy will also be subject to disciplinary action by the Company, which may include restrictions on future participation in equity incentive plans or termination of office or employment or both.

6.1 GUIDELINES

(a) No Trade Periods for Officers, Directors and Certain Employees

During each fiscal year there will be periods when for example field programs and the results therefrom are pending or when sensitive analysis is ongoing and suitable disclosure to the

From time to time, the Company may also institute additional trading restricted periods for directors, officers and certain employees having access to internal financial statements or other Material Non-Public Information. Even outside No Trade Periods, any person possessing Material Non-Public Information on the Company should not engage in any transactions in its securities until two trading days after such information has been publicly disclosed. All directors, officers, employees and other persons are expected to use their judgement in interpreting this policy, and to err on the side of caution at all times. If in doubt, such persons should seek the advice of their supervisor.
